Police Calendar Crowded With Charges of Various Kinds.

"Why can't I get my dinner?"
The hungry husband moans,
And echo answereth, "Thy wife
Is dabbling with the 'bones'."

The infant in his little crib
Cries loudly for his pap,
But mommer's busily engaged
With neighbors, shooting "crap."

And far and wide throughout the land,
Where'er there's bones and pice,
Is heard the festive rattling of
The peace-dispelling dice.

They shake for dollars, pie or beer—
They'd stake their hopes of heaven,
Upon a session at the game
That's known as "seven-eleven."
H. M. AYRES.

YESTERDAY was the second day of the great assault and battery festival which has been occupying Judge Wilcox's almost exclusive attention of late. Eight cases were slated for hearing and of them five were discharged, one nolle prosequi, one continued, while only one resulted in a conviction.

In the case of Fred. Rocha, charged with assault and battery on W. J. Morris, which decision was reserved until yesterday morning, Judge Wilcox fined defendant $5 and costs. The Judge said that complainant had no right to interfere between husband and wife and that defendant was in the wrong in pursuing Morris with a club after the first glamour of the trouble had passed away. The victim of the clubbing had gone somewhat too far and therefore the fine imposed would be light.

W. J. Morris and G. Riordan were discharged on charges of assault and battery on Fred. Rocha, growing out of the above case. And so ended the trouble which was brewed at Kewalo-by-the-Sea, where the ozone plays mad pranks with the varnish on the piano stools and where the swipe mills run night and day and overtime on Sundays.

Ah Woy, said Ah Wai, is a Chinaman who has chicken on the brain. This peculiar form of mental affliction brought him into court on a charge of hen-napping. Ah Woy said that the other fellow got the rooster and then got away, leaving him to explain matters to the police. The case was continued until today.

Okakichi, charged with assault and battery with a deadly weapon on a Chinaman with whom he had had a gambling dispute, was discharged. It appeared that the Jap had made a winning, whereupon the Chinaman kicked and otherwise maltreated him. Then the Jap seized a pocket-knife which was lying handy and carved his way to freedom.

"The law says," said His Honor, "that when a man is in imminent danger he is justified in defending himself, even if it be with a weapon."

Kaawaiu and Kaahue, charged with assault and battery on Ed. Kaapa, were discharged. This was a gambling case closely resembling the preceding one in many of its phases. Complainant admitted that when he had money he gambled and that when the contrary was the case he worked.

"You were all gambling," said the Judge, "and you had a little difference over money which you expect me to settle. You ought all to be arrested on a charge of gambling."

Manuhua, Nahuaka, Pio and Joseph Joaquin were charged with being present at a place where gambling was being carried on. The quartet was mulcted ten "bucks" apiece.

High Sheriff Brown asked for a stiff fine. "The game of 7-11 was, he said, the cause of nearly every crime short of murder."

"I never saw such a thing," remarked the Magistrate. "Why, everyone is shooting craps. Aged women, young children, gray-haired men and maidens, all unite in the chorus, 'seven come eleven.' Only the other day I was waited upon by a deputation of husbands, who told me with tears in their eyes that their dinners were uncooked because their wives were shaking the bones with neighbors. It amounts to a regular epidemic and I'll see what I can do to provide a cure for the disease."

The High Sheriff will issue warrants for the arrest of the principals in the above three cases on a charge of gambling.

S. K. Kaialihii paid $2 and costs for the privilege of disturbing the quiet of the night. He said he was only yodeling to attract his wife's attention. He will probably yodel more wisely and less loudly in the future.

Strange to relate, there was not a single charge of drunkenness and the man with the boisterously-urled olfactory organ was conspicuous by his absence.

TOLMAN'S LITTLE TIME.

Clever Amateurs Will Give Initial Presentation Saturday Night.

The final rehearsal of "Tolman's Little Time" takes place tonight. The stage will be duly set and the performers will don the dresses, false mustachios and paddings that they expect to wear on Saturday, in order to get familiarized with their surroundings. All have been up in their lines for days past and the last rehearsals have consisted in a vigorous polishing process that bids fair to bring the comedy to a successful presentation. "Tolman's Little Time" is a clever farce, involving a series of ludicrous situations brought about by the not strictly truthful endeavors of one Captain Rackety to get himself out of a scrape and the breaking out of Tolman, a henpecked husband, on "a little time." The dialogue is clever, and the action of the piece carried on without a halt, the whole farce lying within the scope of intelligent and well-drawn amateurs. Some of the latter are endeavoring to hide their personalities under assumed Seats seem to be selling rapidly and there is every prospect of a good house. An entertainment of this character should prove a popular feature during the dull times. The stage manager reports several applications for membership since the performance has been announced, and expects to be able to give quite elaborate presentations in the near future. Seats for Saturday are on sale at Wall, Nichols Co.

Castle-Montano Suit.

Editor, Advertiser: As your paper published Mr. W. R. Castle's answer to a suit instituted by my wife to recover moneys held by him, and in which article and answer Mr. Castle claims to have practically supported myself and Mrs. Montano for some time and risked his own credit so to do, I wish to say that the statement, as well as all the other material facts in the answer, are false, and that whatever work he did for us he exacted and received large remuneration.

I ask through your columns that the public will refrain from believing his statements until the case has been passed upon by a competent court and justice has been done.

BASKETBALL TOMORROW.

Two Picked Teams To Play at the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

There will be an exhibition game of basket-ball tomorrow evening at the Young Men's Christian Association between two picked teams. The game will be called at 7:45 o'clock.

The Business Men have decided to have but one basket-ball team, which reduces the number of teams in the league to six.

The date of the gymnasium exhibition has been changed from May 3 to April 26.
